Cataloging crews

We are now undertaking one of the most ambitious, most extensive, most minded bogging efforts to catalog every crew we can find. You may be asking how we plan to do this. It's a very simple, yet ingenious, system. You tell us. I know, it's brilliant! So just walk over to your computer, go to www.thevhc.com, and fill out our survey.

Getting Back to the Basics

What is fire? Science tells us it's just a chemical reaction which results in heat and light, but isn't fire so much more? It holds so much power; since man first lifted the burning branch we have begun to reach for the heavens. Almost every culture tells stories of fire being a divine gift from the gods to man, and it might be. But more than all that, and most important of all, it brings us together. For thousands of years, we have crowded around the bon fire, which is maybe why it holds so much fascination for us. Have you ever been alone in a dark forest? It's scary; but it's not the dark that scares us. We fear what we don't understand, what we can't see coming. And it is this fear which has allowed us to thrive in the merciless world. People crowded together around fires to banish the darkness, and the ignorance. People began to share thoughts and ideas, in an effort to understand the world, and what lies within the darkness. We banded together in tribes and bands, and developed culture and music and begun to unravel the mysteries of the world. And that is true today; despite all our fancy gizmos and games, most people are content to sit around the campfire and just talk. Why? We feel safe. Safe from the forest, the dark, the world, and ourselves. The most enlightening discussions I've ever heard took place around the campfire, and it's a rare opportunity now a days. So when the sun goes down, light a fire and scare the forest away.

Rescue Chicken

Serves 6-8

Ingredients:

- 5 lbs mixed chicken pieces
- 1 small [5 oz] bottle Worcestershire Sauce
- 1 Tbsp. garlic powder
- 4 medium to large onions
- 8-oz bottle french dressing
- 16-oz [approx.] jar apple jelly [apricot tastes good too]
- 3 cups of 5-minute rice
- 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1 cup of water
- cooking oil or margarine

Directions:

Break up chicken into small pieces. Brown it in an oiled fry pan. Peel and cut onions, then sauté in oiled fry pan. Pack chicken into bottom of dutch oven that has been greased with oil or margarine. Mix all the remaining ingredients together and pour over chicken. Apply hot briquettes to the oven in the standard manner (five under, about 25 on top). Check oven in about 20 minutes. If the chicken on the bottom is burning or looks like it might, take oven off of the bottom briquettes. The meal is ready to serve when chicken sort of falls apart. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Arctic Camping Expo

Saturday, January 10, 2009

10:30 am – 3:30 pm

Sayre Scout Reservation

411 Unquity Road, Milton, MA

New and Improved!!! This year's event will feature some outdoor demos – so dress warm!!!

The Arctic Camping Exposition (ACE) is a fun opportunity to learn more about how to enjoy the outdoors in the winter – whether in New England or the Arctic Circle. At ACE, you will gain skills needed for winter camping, snowshoeing, and skiing. Learn how to build igloos and snow caves, find wildlife, use a GPS....and many other ways to have lots of winter fun!

Participants will choose their own route through ACE's exhibits and hands-on activities, learning more about how to be prepared in the cold weather. Participants may arrive at any time during the exposition to begin their "Arctic Trek" -- but they should allow at least an hour and a half to complete their journey through the exposition (and earn their way cool ACE patch!). All treks will start at Hayden Lodge. If you will be attending over lunchtime, please bring your own provisions.

ACE is designed for all scouts and adult leaders interested in winter outdoor fun.

All units are strongly encouraged to send at least their key adult and youth leaders to ACE – but any and all interested scouts from all units are encouraged to attend this exciting Expo.

Register online first / pay online or at the door. A $5/person entrance fee includes admission, handouts, and materials ... plus a special commemorative ACE patch! Register online (click on the "Register >>" button below) in advance. You can then pay online or pay at the door (if you wish to pay at the door, then select your "Payment Type" as "Mail/Offline" and just pay at the day of the event).!

Sea Scouts

All,
This is a call going out for instructors needed for Sea
Scout Summer Camp-
Camp Nautical.

When: Sunday AM, August 9

through Saturday PM, August 15, 2009

Where: June Norcross Webster Scout
Reservation Ashford, Connecticut

Details: Camp Nautical is an opportunity for any Sea Scout attending to gain skills and experience.

I am looking for adults from the Community,
Power Squadron, SUBVETS and Sub base
Sailors who are knowledgeable to teach a nautical subject. The needed instructors are broken down by subject and each subject to take about one hour. I expect there to be a small demand on time for the actual course
plus planning time.

The courses are planned for the morning and evening time periods. My thought was to find instructors who could have the morning or evening available on the day of the course and join us for a meal (i.e. Breakfast or Lunch or Dinner).

Attached you will find the summer camp flier,
course requirements and preliminary schedule.
The schedule of courses can be moved around
to meet your availability.

Please respond to me if you are interested.
Thanks for your support of Scouting.

Congratulations to Mitchell Kennedy- Smith, and David Chutjian of Crew 007 Attleboro Falls, MA. for obtaining the rank of Eagle. Both young men are still very active in their Venturing Crew. This summer they went on a Philmont Trek and both are looking forward to going back and hiking a section of the A.T Trail next spring.

Congratulations to Gianmarco Bucky and his brother Stefano Bucky for obtaining the rank of Eagle Scout. Both brothers are members of Sea Scout Ship 584. This is an occasion for pride and joy as well as a time for reflection. The Eagle award is the highest rank that Scouting offers. It is earned through the scout advancement program. Marco and Stefano Bucky have distinguished themselves through their continued, active service in Scouting. They are trained and practiced in leadership abilities, and are marked by character and actions, as an example to those who will follow them.

Thorns & Roses [and Buds] on 2008

With 2009 starting just the other day, I find that now is a good time to reflect on 2008 on-top of looking forward to the coming year. I learned a great game while hiking through the many acres of Philmont Scout Ranch in Cimarron New Mexico; Thorns and Roses. We played this game every night out on the trail and used it to reflect on the day and look forward to the next day. The thorns were what was difficult about the day or what we didn't like, the roses what we loved, and the buds were what we looked forward to in the coming days.

In 2008 my roses were plentiful in both my scouting life and regular life. For scouting: In February and March we went leap year camping at Massasoit Campground and froze but warmed up with the best fried chicken and rice pilaf I've ever had! In May my crew and I had not only the privilege but the pleasure to partake in the first ever V-

Games and win! [I also got out of school early to help set up!!!] In June we went to Provincetown down on the tip of Cape Cod. Here we all went shopping on the main road and then at night danced in the streets to the tunes of Portuguese singers. This was great; I never knew how good the crewites were at dancing! In August I had the time of my life on a vacation to Philmont Scout Ranch and I have full intentions on returning someday. In October we threw an amazing Halloween Bash that didn't end until really late at night. Also in October we all made appearances at Mass Jam and I learned how to make a candle stick holder with my eyes closed and the others learned how to make logs into bridges that held small children if not larger and older ones. In November we had an awards night along with Thanksgiving dinner. I got my chance to play Master of Ceremonies and embarrassed myself immensely. There's really nothing better than embarrassing yourself and others at the same time.

For thorns... there weren't that many. But depending on how you look at them, some were also roses. For instance, at Massasoit I was freezing cold, well yeah, that is a thorn all around. But the tall mountains in New Mexico that strained my lungs could be seen as a victory of self. Or the fact that I got severely sunburned on our Cape trip, along with many others. Well that also wasn't good all around. But overall, the good made up for the bad every time.

Buds.... These are hard to think of. But I have a few. For instance, I'm psyched for Road to Ranger in January and the New Year's dance we were invited to. V-Games is shaping up quickly into something even more spectacular than last year. Let's just see if my crew can take it home again! Also, we've decided to hike a section of the Appalachian Trail this year which I'm really looking forward too.

Many take a new year as an opportunity to look forward to what they are going to do in the next year. Whether it's to loose weight or to fall in love or whatever. But me, I find that while living in the past is bad, forgetting the past is even worse. I enjoy being nostalgic occasionally, especially in January. So reminisce, smile, even cry tears of joy and go forward into the New Year with those unforgettable memories close to your heart.
